

Lesson Plan 1

Form: 7th

Subject: Composition

Teacher: Fani Gountra

Topic of the lesson: the value of self-sacrifice

Objectives of the lesson: to familiarize students with the meaning of sacrifice, to empathize with the motives of a heroic act and to practice their writing skills.

List of required material: photocopies, whiteboard, notebooks

Process of the lesson: teaching and learning activities

The lesson involved activities such as reading, asking questions, group work and writing. In the beginning, students read the story of Telemachos. The teacher emphasized the motives for his heroic act and with the help of the students they made a list of these heroic motives on the board. Additionally, the teacher separated the students into groups and asked each of the groups to describe a heroic act in our day and age and to create an argument for the value of this act. The teacher went on to write down the students' conclusions on the board. Finally, the students were asked to write a text, relating to "The meaning of an altruistic act in our day and age."
