STOP RUMORES

Keys to highlight misleading disinformation in networks

STOP RUMORES

Read beyond the headline, it may be manipulated

Look over whether it uses sources of information

If it doesn't say who wrote it, don't trust

Look closely at photos and videos

Pay attention to the digital format

Look up other sources, check out the story

Be on the alert of out of context quotations!

Ask the person who sent you the piece news, who sent it her/him

Always review the URL.

STOP RUMORES

INTERPERSONAL COMMUNICATION STRATEGIES

MAKE QUESTIONS

If what you want is to promote doubt, it is more effective for the same person to reach the conclusion that you want to transmit. Thus, you can ask her/him if she/he is sure of what she/he says and how she/he has known it, without feeling accused.

INVITES CURIOSITY

Encourage the other person to take ownership of reality first-hand by going to official sources or through own experiences. Invite her/him not to get carried away by everything that may feel her/him around.

PAY ATTENTION TO NON-VERBAL COMMUNICATION

Body language has to be open and of dialogue: eye contact, smile, nod with the head, relaxed movements. Use a relaxed tone of voice, without ironies and showing real interest.

USE A POSITIVE SPEECH

Value the social, cultural and economic benefits that immigration brings to our society. Talk about citizenship.

CHALLENGE GENERALIZATIONS

Reinforce the idea that all people have personal circumstances and realities that make us unique. We cannot assume that someone will behave in a certain way by the fact of having a certain origin. Is everybody...? Does everybody do ...?

FIND COMMON BONDS

The worries, expectations, concerns or dreams of human being tend to be many and speak different languages. Culture is not always the differential factor.

STOP RUMORES

HOW TO DEACTIVATE A RUMOR?

Ending a rumor is a long-term job. Our goal should be to accompany people around us to question the information that comes to them and not get carried away "by the first thing they hear."

For this, effective communication is essential, avoiding "sermons" and settling in dialogue. It is challenging and as such it needs practice and overcoming disappointments.

ISSUES TO CONSIDER

FIND THE MOMENT

Evaluate if you have time to develop the conversation

Decide if the environment is right to start the conversation.

SHOW RESPECT

You must be willing or willing to listen to the other person's arguments. It is not a confrontation.

End the conversation comfortably. This will help the person to reflect on what you have said and to make you feel better.

ASSESS THE OTHER PERSON

The rumors have to do with our worries and fears.

Try to understand and acknowledge the other person's concerns to achieve better receptivity. Avoid accusations.

LISTEN ACTIVELY

Active listening helps you understand the other person's thoughts, feelings, and actions and make sense of what you said to us.

To listen you have to let speak, do not interrupt or speak over the top.

Make questions.

GET HER/HIS ATTENTION

Your arguments must be short and clear. With a close language.

Use real and close examples.

KEEP CALM

A positive attitude favors the success of the dialogue.

Master your emotions and bring serene responses.

If you can't control yourself, don't continue the conversation, close it in the best way and find another time.
