

“Let us respect the cities which we discover!”

When we decide to leave discovering new countries, it's logical to be a sustainable tourist.

To reach the country which we wish to discover, we can choose transport as the carpooling (like BlaBlaCar). In the country where we travel, voluntary people propose us their services to offer us an accommodation, or a visit of their city for free (like Couchsurfing and Big Apple Greeters). It is the better way to discover a city where to go in a hotel; it allows meeting new people and discovering their traditions of her country. For example: Couchsurfing is a free international website to meet new people volunteers can you offer an accommodation for free when you are traveling and Big Apple Greeters is a free welcome-visitor service from NYC volunteers who show the city and heritages of NYC free of charge. It creates advantages because that makes us save money, meet new people, and participate in the sustainability. It's also a way to respect the heritages of every city which we travel.
