

Conclusion

After Reading and analysing all the questionnaires we can conclude that the students wanted to learn about what has been done in other countries in what concerns sustainability. As they are worried about the environment, they want to know what they can do to protect it. They are also curious about other people's culture and lifestyle. All the students that participated in the mobilities were open-minded, interested in what is going on around them. They also want to socialize and meet people from other countries.

During the visits we could see that the students were really involved in the activities, they were motivated and accepted any challenge. They were very enthusiastic with everything they lived.

They socialized and as some students said they should have more time to enjoy themselves, to be all together because that was also important for them.

Another aspect that everyone mentioned is that the time they stay is short, everyone would like to have two more days at least.

The students referred that they liked everything and see these visits as a great opportunity.

When comparing students expectations to their opinions after the visit we can see that they are really happy with what they lived, with their experience and even mention they are going to study harder to be able to participate in another visit.

The teachers mentioned that the best part of this intercultural exchange is the real opportunity to discuss and share opinions on several issues and the ability to broaden our horizons. We lived a warm and welcoming atmosphere and it is easy to work with already familiar partners. A very positive aspect is the communication with partners and friendly relations.

This last meeting was very rewarding because, finally, all the partners were able to participate. The meeting was very active as we were many, the students got involved in all the activities with enthusiasm and responsibility. They accepted all the challenges. We could see they were all happy.

Laura Marinho