

Up until now, we have managed to damage the environment significantly! Thankfully already in 2022, we have taken action both on a personal and global level. But it isn't enough! There are more plans being set and more and more organizations advocating, protesting and raising awareness. I truly hope that in the future, people still care about our planet and that new laws are being voted to fight against climate change. I also wish that activism was a part of everyone's life and people cared about all living things on this planet. Finally, always remember that the actions of even one person matter and they have a huge impact!
