Virtual trip in Zamosc

Impressions

Georgia Moutafidou

Zamość is a really beautiful historical city in southeastern Poland. First of all, walking through the Great Market square and seeing the frontages which are ornamented with beautiful Renaissance tenement houses with colorful facades together with antique Town Hall was fascinating. Also, the architecture of the XVI century makes the Main Square in Zamość one of the most beautiful and most representative city squares of this type of architecture. Furthermore, the Franciscan Church which is a Baroque Franciscan church in the Old Town in Zamość, dedicated to the Annunciation was very impressive from the inside. Additionally, walking in the kazamar bastion we can see the beautiful gardens which i will definitely be visiting if i go there. What is more, one thing I learned is that Staszica street takes its name from Stanisław Staszic (1755-1826), a leading figure of the Polish Enlightenment: a Catholic priest, philosopher, geologist, writer, poet, translator and statesman.

Zamosc a historical city, it is a heritage of Poland's history but a world one as well, a Renaissance town that till this day its building and history are well-kept since the 16th and 17th century. It reminds me of Cinque Terre, Italy and Switzerland combined together, that also explains the combination of Italian and central Europe architectural tradition they wanted to achieve. In addition, it is obvious that the Franciscan Church is detailed which makes it s. It is the largest church in Zamosc and it was regarded as one of the most prominent 17th-century churches in Poland. To conclude, Zamosc is the perfect city for someone to visit or migrate to, if they love art due to the fact that you can be inspired by its beauty.

Valia Prasa

Zamosc has a very wonderful bridge which provides you an amazing view of the whole city.
 The city has many spacious parks with much green.
 The center of the city is very clean. There is no trace of garbage!
 Every building is well maintained, even the old ones.
 The colorful Tenement houses in Zamosc seems like an ornament for the city.

Evangelia Papadopoulou

1. There are a lot of pretty colorful detached houses with equal height, which creates an organised idea of the place and it's people.
2. The city seems to be rich in green spaces which are also well-preserved.
3. It has a similar bridge to the Love Lock Bridge in Paris.
4. The people seem really creative as there are muliple street artists and musicians.
5. The Franciscan Church of Zamosc creates a catholic ambience with it's baroque style both inside and out.

The main market square has beautiful and colorful buildings.
 The city is ideal for transportation by bike.
 There are green fields, brightening the city.
 The central building has a roof made of brass.
 The white walls of the Franciscan Church, decorated with gold, give of a sensation of divinity.
