

Opening speech

Honorable Chair, fellow delegates, distinguished guests,

Today, we all have one purpose! To make Earth a better place for living, to make Earth breathe easier! We should all understand that the only way to improve the quality of our lives is only by compromising. We are open to any agreements which really make a difference, so let's work our fingers to their bones to get the best result.

If we cooperate, we are certain that by the end of this conference we will have big achievements. So, today, our focus is on change! Please, let's change the way we manage the things that affect our lives!
