

Erasmus has been an interesting experience so far. Even though I still haven't been to a mobility, seeing the other guys' experiences was really fascinating and it was also pretty educative since we got to find out more about countries most of us had never been to. Attending Erasmus laboratories after school gave me the opportunity to meet new people and socialize with some of them; making friends inside school is amazing, since you get to meet these people every day, during breaks and outside school. Erasmus has also increased my curiosity towards all the different countries and cultures around the world, it made me more open minded and it also made me want to travel even more than I used to, which is a lot.
