

ALESSANDRO RAGAZZINI

This Erasmus project has been an amazing opportunity to learn new things and meet new people.

Thanks to this project I went to Spain, where I had a beautiful time, and probably, next year I will stay there for three months; this experience let me improve my spanish and know a lot of people from different countries with different cultures.

During this year, everytime we met we did different things, like the project's radio or debates about lots of things.

In my opinion, also the project's motto "No man is an island" has a very deep meaning, because it lets us understanding that there are no barriers between human beings and that's really important to respect and learn new things from other cultures.
