Lithuanian multipart song „Gervela, dai čiūto“

Lithuanian conventional ones are characterized by sharp dissonant consonances, second intervals between individual voices and syncopated rhythms. There are very few words in Lithuanian glee texts, they are repeated, there are many audio words and suffixes. Words are short and narrow in scope. They consist of two to five sounds of different pitches. But the most interesting thing in the song is rhythm and harmony union.

2010 November 16 UNESCO officially includes Lithuanian treaties in the list of UNESCO's representative intangible cultural heritage of mankind.

Song speech:

Dai čiūto, dai čiūto...
Tu gervela, dai čiūto,
Kur lakioji, dai čiūto,
Tu gervela, dai čiūto?
Po rugienų, dai čiūto,
Tu gervela, dai čiūto.
Tu surinkai, dai čiūto,
Tu gervela, dai čiūto,
Kviečių varpas, dai čiūto.

Translation:

- You little crane bird,
Where have you been flying,
You dear crane bird?
- Around the rye field...
- You little crane bird,
You've gathered there
You dear crane bird,
The wheat ears...

Good listening!
