

During the English class, fifth-graders Luna and Karlo did assignments in a workbook. Because Karlo's English is a bit weaker, he often needs help. He is reluctant to ask for help because he is a bit shy, but luckily he has a classmate Luna who is happy to help him. Karlo then feels much more comfortable and has more self-confidence, and Luna benefits from additional repetition and an attempt to explain something brings her into a new situation in which she further develops her language skills.
