

Collaborative Stories

→Characters and compulsory words by: DuQuKappa

→Story written by: MineCraft Builders, Croatia

Game of Thrones

Once upon a time, in a kingdom far, far away, in a jungle lived a great Blue Gorilla. His name was unknown; everybody knew him by the name Blue Gorilla or just Blue. He was a great leader of "Souvlaki" tribe and everybody was afraid of him. He was conceited, mean and jealous. Every morning he had bananas for breakfast. He loved bananas; they gave him superhuman strength so he could jump and run like no other gorilla. But, if there were no bananas for breakfast, that day he would be just like any other gorilla. That was his big secret.

One morning, great Blue gorilla woke up. He looked himself in a mirror, put a crown of bananas on his head and came down from his tree to have a breakfast. He sat down at the royal table and waited. But there were no servants. "Where have they gone? What's going on?" he thought, "Something must be wrong." "Servants!" he shouted. But nobody answered. He shouted again. Finally, someone came. It was Jerry, small and weak gorilla which nobody liked. He was trembling. "Yes, my King?" he muttered. "Where are my bananas? I have to eat bananas for breakfast, you know it. So, where are they?" Blue replied. "I'm afraid there are no more bananas. We have looked everywhere, they are all gone" Jerry said. "What?! No bananas?!" Blue shouted. "I'm afraid David took them all," Jerry muttered. David was a very nice gorilla. He wasn't like Blue Gorilla. He was very famous, 'cause he was an F1 driver in All Gorilla Championship. Also, he was very friendly and nice to everyone in the jungle. "David?! I'll find that little foolish guy and finish him!" Blue shouted. Blue Gorilla was jealous of him and was looking for a reason to throw him out of the jungle.

David was sitting on a chair when Blue Gorilla came. There were bananas all around him. "David, what do you think you are doing?" Blue shouted. David stood up, looked Blue in the eyes and whispered in his ear: "I know your secret." Blue Gorilla almost fell down. He wasn't that brave and arrogant anymore. His secret is revealed. "And...what you'll do about it?" Blue asked. "You are arrogant and mean. We want you to step aside. Our tribe needs a new leader. Honest one. On our secret council we have decided to make Mufasa our leader again" David answered. Mufasa was the first leader of the tribe, but he got sick so Blue Gorilla took his place. "And what if I don't want to step aside?" Blue asked. "I'll tell your secret to everyone and they will make a fun of you. Someone will surely challenge you and you will lose a fight. It's better to step aside, believe me, I'm trying to help you." David answered. Blue Gorilla didn't say anything. He turned around and left David alone.

Next morning when the sun came out, Jerry found a message on Blue Gorillas table. It said: "Dear ones, I had to left. I got an invitation from my close relative to visit him in the Great Gorilla States. I know you'll miss me. Mufasa will succeed me. Goodbye!" Jerry gave the message to David, and soon everyone has heard of it. Mufasa became a leader of "Souvlaki" tribe and a great party was arranged to celebrate it. The end.

