FALLERES AND FALLERS CUSTOMS

The valencian women have two costumes, one that they wear in a normal day (llauradora) and the other for the holiday days (fallera). They consist on:

- Shoes: lined with the same material of the dress.
- Silk or cotton socks.
- A undergarment is added so that the skirt has more volume.
- The fabric of the skirt can be silk, cotton or rayon, printed with flowers.
- Above is the apron, which is embroidered in gold or silver thread, forming striking drawings.
- And for the top of the suit, a shirt made with the same fabric of the skirt and a scarf similar to the apron.

HAIRSTYLE

When the falleras dress up with “llauradora” costume they comb with a hair bun. But when they use the “fallera” costume they comb their hair with three buns (a comb on each side and one in the back).

The bun is sometimes braided and some jewelry is used to make it even prettier

The fallers also have two customs:

- Torrentí suit: This custom was used in holiday days. The suit consists of long striped pants, silk or thread shirt, vest and girdle, with black shoes and cotton socks or labrador espadrilles with embroidered socks.
 - Saragüell suit: this custom was used by men in a normal day. The key parts of the custom are: white shirt, vest, “saragüells” and “manta”.
