Some facts about Tallinn

Tallinn's Old Town was entered on UNESCO's list of World Heritage Sites in 1997 as an 'exceptionally complete and well preserved example of a medieval northern European trading city.

In 1284 Tallinn became a member of the Hanseatic League, a network of cities that dominated northern Europe's trade in Medieval times.

One of the most famous symbols of Tallinn is the Old Thomas weather vane that stands atop the Town Hall Tower.
