

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

It has the ability to separate people, and create rifts where there previously were none. It makes it easier to radicalize and polarize.

For other people it matters, because they are only thinking about our skin color or our differences. But for me we are all the same and ONE

To describe and separate one another. All people don't look the same and we should embrace and love ourselves for our unique ways.

By giving a person a set of abilities, we often tend to put people in a category. Instead of actually getting to know them. That can be bad.

Many people judge another only from their appearance. We all are different in our own way, but by appearance we are all the same.

I think people use labels because they like to feel like they have control. And we categorize people so we can link them to something people feel the need to belong somewhere, a category to put themselves in. personally I think that labels are unnecessary.

It doesn't matter actually, we only use it to create gaps between people, and not joining each other in harmony. We made labeling a problem.

I think that people like to label and categorize people because it makes them feel better, like they are more important or more worth.

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

because we could not be able to reach out to people. It's actually the most natural thing to judge people and it should not be wrong. lol h

Categorizing people has an ability to separate them from each other and make conflicts that never were there in the first place.

Often you believe you are what others call you, therefore it's important to know that categorizing people can hurt other people.

Categorizing people strengthens their hatred as they tear apart love. You can distinguish people by difference, reduce unity and solidarity.

Because everybody does not get an equal start of getting to know others, when they get categorised instead of get to show their personality.

Labels are usually used to make things easier, but labels must be truthful. If they are not they end up in misunderstandings.

I think that categorizing people does not make sense. It separates people and continues to divide us rather than bringing us together.

Labeling can be a mistake of thinking - especially when we give negative labels. Labeling is the basis of stereotypes.

The other person gives the sense of being different from other. If we

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

Every person is not reliable. People are categorized by society. Because people want to protect themselves and their loved ones.

The appearance only reflects the style of the person. The style shows the way of life. But we can not see his brain and his heart.

People can be prejudice about another person. Says "That is arabic this is disabled. We will prevent.

I think people are not born knowing to label Because labeling is a perception placed under the subconscious of the individual.
DISRESPECTFUL

people are tagged catagorized but I think this is very wrong I think the village guide does not want to label like misleading

It is important because on the one hand we have the need to identify, on the other hand labelling means limiting.

I think putting people in a mold is wrong. What makes people special is that we must not discriminate. we're all equal people

People sees themselves better than other people.that's the reason of labeling and categorizing

we have to love people for being human

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

Classifying and labeling people does not make any contribution to us and is not good. I will not make good comments about classifying people.

I think it's a galling for people. it's worst thing in the world. People shouldn't do it Berfin

Labeling and categorizing people does matter because it affects people's psychology and it can lead to extreme forms of racism.

Günsenin Because when people are tagged, they close themselves. They start afraid of everybody and not being like themselves.

Yusuf K Labeling people destroys unity. It destroys solidarity...

There is a distinction between people. it breaks the unity and solidarity among people. It makes people unhappy. Ezgi A.

People are separated into groups among themselves. As we form groups, the communication of people is diminishing. Petek

I think labeling and categorizing is not the right behavior. But they think they're doing something right. Actually, they're wrong.

We cause separation by labeling people. Instead of loving one another, we become increasingly hostile. This is a bad thing for all of us.

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

Bengisu People have to match each other. Nobody can come to one place with undiminished prejudices. This is a big problem ikbal Hekimhan-Because people are not just religious and languages. Their emotions and thoughts are more important.

Classification of people distort the association in the world

Categorizing people gives harm to the brotherhood of people and leads discrimination

Categorizing or labelling people weaken our unity and leads discrimination.

In my opinion : Labeling and categorization will result in poor results, communication problems.
~Ahmet Said G.

Busenur - Because, classifying people makes them seem like they're different, bad. But all people are equal.

I think label is destroying society for this reason people are categorizing.

I think that most people do it without knowing or unintentionally because they don't think about it they do not emphasize

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

Buse- Because of this labeling people are just make trial. The only thing that needs to be done is to active the hearts.

Tolerance between cultures is reduced. Labeling and categorizing people is greatest cause of wars.

We born equally but we create the differences. Labeling and categorizing people is injurious. Pelin

People do not like being tagged because they do not want to be excluded.

Beril Ö- Every day many people are categorized and excluded because of their physical characteristics this causes the societies to disappear.

Making bad comments about him without knowing the other person can make him sad. We can hurt her

I THINK PEOPLE CAN'T BE JUDGED BY THEIR SKIN COLOR, THEIR RELIGION, THEIR NATION... IT IS WRONG. MURAT K.

classification exclusion alignment

Yusuf Ö. - Labeling and classifying people according to their external appearances and ways of thinking is a big question for all mankind.

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

It matters because this action creates hate among people. Most of them are isolated by others. This leads to negative results as insecurity.

Every person is not reliable. People are categorized by society. Because people want to protect themselves and their loved ones.

Aybüke- Because every person is equal. No one has the right to judge by any language, religion or race.

Labeling separates us from each other. And hides the real personalities under them - Melek Tuğçe Humiliation is not reasonable. Because people are equal. No one can humiliate anyone. Hüseyin K.

It is selfish to judge people unfairly. These selfish people pass the labeling themselves and label other people and attach adjectives.

It matters because it defines how people think of you as a person by their perspective.

Ayşenur - People say words that will break others by exhibiting selfish behavior. I think it comes from lovelessness and disrespect.

Why are people separated into categories? Human is human. Black does not have white... Nisa S.

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

Mete-Mee too such behavior breaks the peace of society. Increase prejudice. Reduce sociability

I think people should not be labeled these people are very upset that I hope it ends - Eda it is bad to classify people because nobody can choose their family and race. Classifying people has a bad influence on people. -Serdar Efe ZEYNEP It's bad to distinguish people. May damage emotions.

Because it disrupts the psychology of these people and people feel themselves excluded from society.

OKAN- because we have to love people for being human beings we must be together for the values that hold people together

It matters because it divides our society and makes people hate each other for no reason.

I think that people who become radicalized, use this as a "weapon" to feel more important and superior than the others.

People who label other people, don't love themselves so they are trying to make others hate themselves too. Nobody has the right to do this.

Show image

Why does labeling and categorizing people matter?

labeling people can only have bad results in our society. It separates humans and can probably affect one's emotions

CHLIARAS-the labeling and categorizing is inside us this is what humans do because maybe we like to feel powerful or strong labeling and categorizing people cause actually a bad influence on our world That's because people get isolated and discriminated.

Because these people feel themselves excluded from society. Adversely affect these psychologies

Some people exclude other societies for benefit of their societies. Strong societies usually do this toward weak societies. Mert K

Gonul Bulut-Turkey Distinguishing between people damages collecting

Show image