

Fisherman Plunk and His Wife in Gorzów

Fisherman Plunk was sick and tired of his miserable life...

What a dog's life it is, to be sure! Cried Plunk to himself.

There's no joy in my life in this world at all, at all.

So Plunk sat for three days and nights in his boat...

*Then he saw the Pale Dawn-Maiden.
"Go home and you find what you need" -she said.*

*"My mother is dead and I'm alone in this world.
Take me for your wife, Plunk" - said the girl.*

They led a miserable and simple life.

*The Woman
went up the hill to gather wild spinach.*

At the evening the woman sat down beside Plunk to tell him stories, to wile away the time for him

She told him about kings' castles...

And about their future...

One day a little son was born to them.

But leading their simple life made Plunk angry and frustrated.

"I tell you I'll wait no longer!"

It was the end of their peaceful life.

"Tomorrow in the morning you will take me to the Sea King's Castle!"

He told the woman to go away with the child along the sea-shore and he would go in the other direction.

She took up her child and went away crying...

He didn't find the way to the Sea King.

She was so tired that one day she fell asleep on a stone.

When she woke up...

her baby was gone!!!

Her grief was so great ☹️

She became dumb from that hour.

The poor dumb woman went back home.

Plunk came home, too - and there was no baby!

Plunk tried his sea-spell once again.

"What do you want ? I will help you just this once more."

"Take me to the Sea King!!!"

Welcome to the Sea King's castle!

You will enjoy a great store of gold and treasure. here.

There's so much pleasure and wealth!

Welcome my boy! - said the Sea King.

Plunk went mad for pure joy!

He sat at the coral table eating and drinking.

The Under Seas Fairies brought honeyed drink.

The Fairies were dancing and laughing.

The little King was his lost baby boy!

*Vladko didn't recognize his father...
"You are not my father -you are the silly-billy" said Vladko.*

Plunk's wife was at home all alone..

As she stood by her mother's grave...

...a beautiful Hind came to her.

The animal told the women what to do.

She bravely sailed in her boat and was exposed to many dangers.

Meanwhile, Plunk took his baby boy and escaped from the Sea King's Castle.

They dived into the water.

"Oh no! They are drowning!"

Hopefully, Plunk's wife was there! and she caught him!

*Next, she caught the child with the golden apple.
The apple sank but her baby was safe!*

The fairy gave them the sail to escape the waves.

The boat rode swiftly upon the sea.

They lived happily ever after ☺

Here is new-born happiness!!!
