

MY TRAVEL BLOG

So sadly I don't travel much, but have great memories from my little trips in the past. Few years ago I had two trips to Lithuania. Both trips were 3 days long.

The first trip was to Kaunas. We (me and my family) booked ourselves rooms at an Airbnb site. We stayed at a house were lived an elderly couple. They were hospitable and very nice people. I don't quite remember the order we went to places, but it doesn't matter. I remember that we went to a shopping center and there was at least 15 m high aquarium. I was mind-blown, there were even sharks. At the evening we tried local food, but sadly I had a travel sickness, so you can expect that evening wasn't very pleasant. But the next day we went to a water park and I was feeling much better. This park was half spa, but I couldn't go there because it was only allowed from 18. Still I had an amazing time with my family. I don't have any more vivid memories from this trip.

The second trip was to Palanga. Near the city we booked a small house. The sea was very close from where we stayed. We went to dolphinarium. It was overcrowded, but I wasn't really surprised about it. The show was breathtaking. One evening we went to Palangas main walking street, I just can't believe all the shops, restaurants and cafes I saw. And the sun was shining on my face, we had such a lovely view. I felt like I could get away from it all and live like in a dream. One thing that I and my mom wanted the most was to go and see the white tigers. They were really beautiful. And one of the best parts of this trip was when we went to pamper ourselves at a spa. This spa was amazing, well it had a lot of pools too. And some of the pools were quite unique. They were 30°C and filled with salt water. There was a little minus that the cashier didn't new well English, so it was little bit hard to communicate, but it was alright in the end.

It wasn't much, but I liked my two trips to Lithuania, and I think I had broadened my horizons. I really suggest at least once to visit this country.
