*WHAT MAKES HEIDENHEIM
SO SPECIAL?*

HELLENSTEIN SCHLOSS

Come to see the Hellenstein Castle, which is located 70 meters above the city of Heidenheim an der Brenz in eastern Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It was once the home of the Lords of Hellenstein. The castle was first built during the 12th century by the Hellenstein family. In 1273 the castle passed out of the control of the Hellensteins and had several owners before coming under the control of the Dukes of Württemberg. On August 5, 1530 the old castle burned to the ground and was rebuilt during the mid-16th century. At the end of the century it was expanded on its eastern flank to create a new castle. During the 17th and early 18th century the castle was at its peak as a symbol of the Württemberg dukes. Around 1762 the family could no longer maintain the castle and it began to fall into disrepair. Eventually some of the stones were sold off as building material.

BRENZPARK

Relax in our beautiful Brenzpark. Each year and time of day has its special charm in Brenzpark. Whether in the scenic gardens, on the sunny stone raft, in front of the flower carpet as a viewing axis to the castle or in the rarity garden. The park has an idyllic character where people can relax and unwind. But also numerous action and play areas from the playgrounds to the skate park to join in or watch.

KNÖPFLESWÄSCHERIN

The legend tells the following history: A woman brought her husband his lunch to the workplace. On the way she stumbled and the good Knöpfe fell on the way. Because a right-wing Swabian housewife does not let anything deteriorate, she hurried straight to the next stream; washed the Knöpfe and brought it to her husband. Of course she did not talk about her mishap. Some passer-by saw this and told it to mockery. So the Hoirnamer became the KnöpfleswäscherInnen.

A street scene in a European town, likely Hellenstein, featuring colorful buildings, a cafe with a white umbrella, and a white van parked on the street. The image has a reddish tint.
