Yes	8	27.6 %
No	21	72.4 %

actual experience, based on practise. to be polyvalent.

I think being motivated is essential. Being ready to work hard in order to get a job as well.

Oral skills, knowledge in new technologies

Openness to other fields and opportunities, Determination, Networking

To hire you, companies require experience, but you need to get a job to have experience.

more and more people have a degree and make long studies

Motivation, abilities

personality of the candidate

Higher studies and previous experiences in this particular field (internships for example)

I think experiences and connections are as important as a degree

blabla

Never mind

heloo

experience/work placements

Experience, Internships, Workshops, Charisma, Ambition

A simple degree is not enough, either you have to carry on your studies (master for example) or to have work experiences and other skills that you could have learnt outside the traditional cursus (such as art or sport)

Even if you have a degree it is necessary to demark yourself from the others, for example to have other degrees than the one required for the job is always a bonus. To find a job it is necessary to do long studies.

Experience

Relationships are very important, and you must be resourceful enough.

Speaking several languages has become really important to get employed. Also, the job I wish to do requires knowledge and experience about several skills (law, geography, sociology, sustainable development...), so having only one degree is not enough.

To keep a job you have to obey your boss, whatever he asks you to do.

Determination and motivation

Ambition and motivation

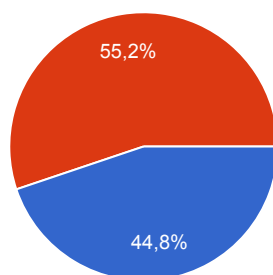

luck

I think that experience is as much important, so as passion. If you want to do something just to have job, then it won't be good enough.

xx

To me, it's not enough because in our society find job is complicated and takes time. Also, i have a lot of examples that proves that have a degree doesn't really matter now. It's a condition for have a good job sure, but it's not the only one. I don't really know but i think that you have to have luck

5- Do you know how to get help if you are unemployed?

Yes 13 44.8 %
No 16 55.2 %

Pôle emploi in France

my family/ pôle emploi

Pôle emploi

papa

Job centres and from my family if it gets really critical

Pôle Emploi -> Advices Internship/Formations -> gain new skills

Besides unemployment center such as PoleEmploi, I don't know how Pôle Emploi is supposed to help people to find a job.

Centers for unemployed people

I know that if I can't find any job, thanks to some family members, I will be able to find a job anywhere : in Canada. My parents's friend offered to me a place to live, a job that may be interesting to me and with a good salary. Plus, there are several others things that might help me : there are some kind of degrees such as BAFA (degree required to work with children during the holidays)

People of my surroundings and also centers of unemployed people

You can get help in several organism like Pole emploie in France or if you are between 18 and 25 years old i think you can get help in CIDEM that will you propose some formations, or little job like civil service . If you live in a town and not a village you can go to the town council and take informations on the formation, or job.
