

Evaluating the ERASMUS experience

My name is Nick Papafilipakis and I am a student from the Greek team with this ERASMUS project. What I enjoyed the most about this project was the opportunity to meet students from Spain. We had a great time when they came to our country for a week. We talked about a lot of things and exchanged opinions on many different topics. We told them how we live here and they told us how they live in Spain. We told them about our traditions and they told us about theirs.

I must also say that the students from both Spain and Bulgaria did excellent work with their presentations. It is obvious that they devote time and research and this is very inspiring to our team. One activity that I enjoyed was when we made bags out of T-Shirts to learn the meaning of reusing. My presentation was about economical tips for air-conditioning and I hope everyone enjoyed it.

The specialty I am studying is Natural Gas in the mechanical engineering field. I learned many things with this program that are related to my work and I will try to always keep in mind air quality when making choices in my work in the future.

I'm very much looking forward to coming to Spain, reuniting with our friends from the Spanish team and hopefully meeting the Bulgarian students as well.
