

Participating in this program has certainly been a pleasure, as well as a great way to attain knowledge about topics of international importance. By researching and creating various informative presentations and videos, we were able to learn more about the importance of conserving the environment and how our daily actions affect it. Furthermore, we were able to pass this knowledge, acquired by analyzing different statistics and data, and help the other participants in the program to give them a better understanding of the issue.

We weren't familiar with a lot of things before listening to the presentations. For example, we knew that the air quality in Sofia and other capital cities around the world wasn't great, but we weren't aware of how truly awful it has become in recent years. It's scary to even think that we have to breathe this air everyday. Regardless, the presentation was great, and the maps and statistics the team used really helped us get a fuller picture of what is happening.

Finally, it was great seeing the differences in the educational systems and methods of our partners in this project, with whom it was a pleasure working. Comparing their presentations to ours showed us how we can improve in both our research and style of presenting.

Sofia, February 8, 2022

Gergana Peeva, Martin Lozanov, David Gaydev, Greta Angelova,

Martin Mitev, Stanislava Kovandjiiska