

Online tools to learn English (for self-study)

Authors: Lucía Domínguez Villalba, Isabel Cuesta Jiménez and Nelli Nevalainen

1. Lyrics Training

<https://es.lyricstraining.com/>

Lyrics Training is a website in which people can practise any language through songs. The objective is to complete the lyrics of the song you choose while you are listening to it. In fact, the song will stop if you do not complete the empty spaces so that you can rewind that part and listening again to catch the word. There are different levels depending on the number of words to complete.

This website is very useful because everybody can practise English in a very fun way. Even there are children's songs, so this page can be a sort of game for them, a game with which they practise their listening skills.

2. Duolingo

<https://www.duolingo.com/learn>

The webpage Duolingo is meant for studying a new language for example English, but the instructions are written in your mother language if you have set it.

Duolingo is a website, where you can learn vocabulary, grammar and pronunciation through different interactive games and quizzes. You can do exercises without creating a profile, but if you create a "profile" for the game, you can keep up with your progress. Anyhow, it is totally free!

It is useful because in Duolingo, you can set your own learning goals (e.g. daily goals) to suit your daily schedules for example in addition to other school work and it is very easy, fun and motivating way to exercise with it. It is meant for the beginning phase of language learning if you have just started to study English for example.

3. Online learning zone-Oxford University Press

<https://elt.oup.com/student/oupeprimary/?cc=cz&sellLanguage=cs>

This resource is a website provided by the Oxford University. Here you can find a wide variety of topics in which you can practice English through many different songs, stories, chants, grammar exercises, crafts and many different game. By means of these different tools, they can learn at the same time they are having a good time.

This resource is very useful because children can work with it by themselves. They will learn a lot of vocabulary and grammar at the same time they will be acquiring different language skills. Furthermore, since it is such an interactive resource, it encourage and motivate children to use it. They will be learning with almost not noticing about it. They will never be bored because there are many different things to do.

4. Cambridge Assessment English

<https://www.cambridgeenglish.org/>

Cambridge Assessment English, which is provided by Cambridge University, is a free resource in which we can find many different tools to learn English. Among them, there are English tests, exams training, games, songs and activities for everybody. This resource is not only for children, but also for adults. There are many levels in which you can be trained depending on your age.

Cambridge Assessment English, is such an useful resource since it counts with a wide variety of tools to learn English by yourself. It is for all ages and it really can help you improving reading, writing, listening, reading, grammar and vocabulary. A thing that should be highlighted is that it provides with answer in order to let you know your progress.