Laima is the largest producer of confectionery in Latvia. Its headquarters are in Riga. It is named for Laima, the goddess of fate in Latvian mythology. Even though the history of chocolate production in Latvia goes back many years, Laima was established in 1925, and still to this day is the leading local chocolate company in the country, which has survived Latvia's turbulent history. Love is the greatest value of Laima chocolates and the main secret behind its unrepeatable taste and aroma. At present, Laima is one of the few food industry enterprises in Eastern Europe, which produces more than 90 kinds of candy and chocolate products directly on the spot, and by-products from various regions of the world are delivered to the shop premises.
