

Someone stole my online identity and now it is like if I were nobody, the day that my identity was stolen started like a normal day, I woke up at seven o'clock I took a shower and I got ready for the school but something was not like everyday I had a strange feeling, I DIDN'T REMEMBER MY NAME when I was leaving my home I told my mom, "Mom I know that this is an strange question but what was my name?" she looked at me like if I lost my head but she wasn't able to answer, she took like five seconds to think and then she told me to go to the school and don't make that "stupid questions" I paid attention to her and I started my walk to the school like everyday with my friends but something was so strange due to the fact that my friends were IGNORING me like if I wasn't there, they didn't told me nothing, they didn't looked at me, literally like if I didn't exist so after a while I decided to talk to them I ask them the same question as I did to my mom, "I know that this is an strange question but what was my name?" they looked at me like if I were someone who they have never met and the answer was "we don't know can you stop following us please" I was shocked it was like a nightmare but I thought that would be a bad joke and I followed my path to the school, when I arrived I tried to use my school computer but when I tried to use the apps and put the password on it I received the same answer in all of them "wrong password please try again" I get shocked again, and I told to my teacher can I go to see the principal please (in my school he is the informatic) my teacher look at me and he told me ok but wait until I check that everyone is here, he started to tell all the names but when it was my turn he just told the next one, thing that was so strange because he has been my math teacher since I was 11 years old but I thought that it was a fail and that it wasn't important so I went to see Jose (the principal) and I asked him to help me with my passwords but after a while he told me that he wasn't able to do nothing because all my passwords and accounts had been stolen, I get paralyzed I didn't know what to do in that situation but Jose asked me to go back to class when I went back I locked through the window that... SOMEONE WAS IN MY SITE he was exactly like me and was talking with my friends and the teacher called him "Jorge" in that moment I remembered that this was my name I was in shock I went to the bathroom to try to get relaxed but when I saw myself in the mirror I couldn't believe what I was seeing... I had started to disappear while that other person was living my life I was disappearing, that is what happens when someone steals your identity even if it is online it feels like if you disappear while the other person do whatever he/she wants with your name.
