

THE SECRET AGENT'S HANDBOOK OF LANGUAGE CHALLENGES

EN

TACKLE UP TO 50+1 LANGUAGE CHALLENGES IN YOUR TRAINING TO BECOME A TOP AGENT

DEAR AGENT,

As an international agent you are going to visit new places and foreign lands. It will be challenging. A good agent needs to be confident about his/her language skills to ensure never to reveal their identity! Therefore you will need to be able to speak foreign languages as fluently as possible. This handbook has been developed to help you become a top agent.

The language challenges contained in the following pages mostly relate to authentic, everyday communication tasks that agents need to be prepared for.

Research has shown that some learners hesitate to take risks and do not always take opportunities to practise a language they are learning outside the language classroom.

Real-life communication in a foreign language is not stress-free, especially when you are on a mission. It may involve making mistakes, being misunderstood, misunderstanding others, taking on a different identity, changing the way you use language.

This secret agent's handbook will prepare you for these situations. Taking as many language challenges as possible will, all importantly, help to boost your confidence on a mission.

Good luck, agent!

YOUR MISSION

Take as many challenges as possible from the list provided.

Write in the corresponding fields each time you undertake a challenge.

You are free to use the space provided at the end of the document to propose your own additional challenges.

Count the challenges you have undertaken. Once you have completed at least 20 you are eligible to receive a certificate from the EDL website edl.ceml.at/languagechallenge.

Attention: this handbook will not self-destruct after you have completed all the challenges!

WHY 50+1 CHALLENGES?

First and foremost the challenges should be fun! We call them challenges as they encourage you to do something new - that you probably would not normally do and indeed to go a little beyond your comfort zone. Some involve an element of risk – but as the saying goes – nothing ventured, nothing gained!

The 50+1 challenges offer a varied range of possibilities, which you can pick and choose from according to whether you are applying them on a mission, in a classroom setting, on your own, or with friends or family. Some are more difficult than others (with the most difficult indicated by an icon) but the majority are intended to be flexible and adaptable to different ages, contexts, languages and levels of language proficiency.

We hope that you will be inspired by some of the challenges and, as a result, will develop your own which you are then welcome to add to the list.

THE 51ST CHALLENGE

The '51st challenge' is a special one, where you can truly unleash your creativity and show to the world (or at least a small part of it!) what you can do in one or more foreign language/s. It is simply called 'What do you dare to do in a foreign language?'

50 + 1

In this challenge, you are invited to post a short video clip (no longer than 30 seconds) to the European Day of Languages' website around this motif. It can be based on one or more of the challenges in the handbook, or can be entirely your own idea.

However, please do not do anything that will endanger either your own or anyone else's health in the process! A video of the most creative entries will be compiled on the European Day of Languages' website.

BACKGROUND

COUNCIL OF EUROPE

CONSEIL DE L'EUROPE

The European Day of Languages is an initiative of the Council of Europe and the European Commission, celebrated each year on 26 September.

The main aims of the Day are:

- to raise awareness of the importance of language learning;
- to promote the rich linguistic and cultural diversity present in Europe;
- to encourage lifelong language learning in and out of school.

In developing the language challenges contained in this handbook, we have sought to fully reflect these objectives.
