Geographic area

Gold embroidery is a textile technique that is carried out in many areas of Spain, especially in Andalusia.

Craft characteristics

- ❖ The specialists in this area use strands of gold as main material.
- ❖ The most important characteristic of this craft is that it never crosses the fabric that is, it remains extended on its surface and it is small stitches of yellow cotton threads for gold and white for silver that go fixing. The gold thread rolls it in the drill bit, from where it is released as the work progresses, and the needle is threaded with the cotton thread, previously waxed to lend it hardness.
- ❖ It is usually made on cloth, velvet or silk.

The technique

The golden thread is not threaded into the needle, but is passed over the fabric and sewn without going through it; and that is not especially difficult, everyone can learn, although it takes a lot of time and patience.

The embroidery can be nuanced and in this case it is nuanced with colored shades that, when embroidered with them, leave the gold more or less discovered

It is called nuanced to turn to the same work but in which to spend less gold the dark are filled with sedas by laying the gold only on the parts in which they are to appear. In Spain , due to centuries of Muslim domination, the influence of Arabic embroidery was very important. Of the various Spanish styles , the most striking was the black sheep wool knit on white linen.
