

Lemko glass bead necklaces - Krywulki | Glass, ceramics and pottery

By Francisco Florido and Anais Gomez

INDEX

- 1)DESCRIPTION
- 2)LOCATIONS
- 3)PROCES

1)DESCRIPTION

- These jewels are a unique product of the Lemko ethnic minority of the Hutzul region, in the southeastern tip of Poland in the Carpathian mountain range.
- Krywulki is the name given to beaded necklaces, which are made in a small loom or with a needle, through a meticulous and patient threaded of 2 mm beads in a strong thread.

2) LOCATIONS

- Poland, Carpathian and Bieszczady mountain

3)PROCESS

Before the war, rich young women often used versions up to 15 cm wide, which closely resembled necklaces. The less well-off used to afford only a narrow piece, which they wore with an embroidered blouse and a corset.

