TEXT TRANSLATED

I have the keys, the doorknob in my hand
But I doubt whether I can still really go inside
Your every move seems away from me
I haven't seen your heart open for so long

Do you want to know how it dances without me?
Maybe you have more balance without me
If I have to, I will step aside
If it is better, if it is better

Does life have more shine without me?
Will love get another chance without me?
If that is really the case, then I will release you
If it is better, if it is better
Won't say I don't miss you

The front door opens and I slam shut again
Even though what I want to say is on my face, oh
I can't talk to you so I'll keep quiet
But it feels like you don't want to fight for me

Do you want to know how it dances without me?
Maybe you have more balance without me
If I have to, I will step aside
If that's better, if that's better

Does life have more shine without me?
Will love get another chance without me?
If that is really the case, then I will release you
If it is better, if it is better
Won't say I don't miss you

Go and see how it dances
Go and see how it dances
It's not that I don't want to
But I seem to have been forgotten all the way
Wouldn't know which direction
Which way still leads to you

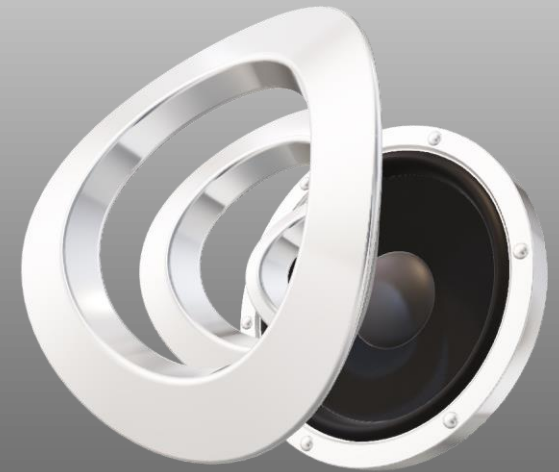

My keys, I have the doorknob in my hand

I'll learn how to dance without you
Even though I miss the balance without you
Oh, I hope I can do it without you
If it is better, if it is better

Go see how it dances without me
Give love another chance without me
If I have to, I will step aside
If it's better, if it's better

Go see how it dances
Go see how it dances
Do you want to know how it dances without me?
Maybe you have more balance without me
If I have to, I will step aside
If it is better, if it is better

Don't mean to say I don't miss you

PRESENTATION

Hoe het danst is a single from Dutch DJ Armin van Buuren and singers Marco Borsato and Davina Michelle, released on May 8, 2019 on Universal Music Group record label.

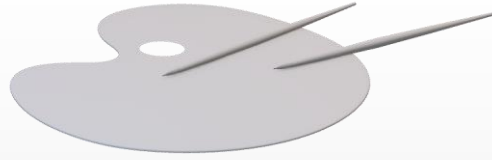

MEANING OF THE SONG

This song tells about the story of a couple that broke up. The boy says to the girl how his life is different and how she feels without him. She left him because she felt better so, but he wants really know if she has more equilibrium alone and if she wants to continue in this way. But the girl is closed, and he thinks that if it's better for her, he will go away. But this doesn't mean he won't miss her.

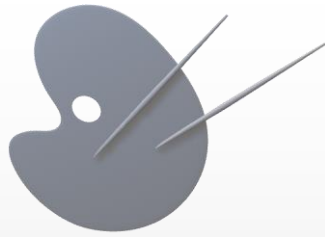

COMPARISON

We can compare the lyrics of the song to a famous painting by Frida Kahlo, entitled "The two Fridas"

The painting represents two self-portraits of Frida: the one loved by her husband and the one who instead faced their separation. One of her has an intact heart and holds a small pendant with the portrait of Diego in her hand, while the other holds a pair of bloody scissors with which she has torn her heart to shreds. So the boy in the song remembers the girl she loved so much, a part of him remembers the moments spent together, indelible and engraved in her heart, this is represented by Frida holding the pendant. The other part of him instead understands that it is better to let her go, that she hurt him so much and that what happened to them will remain only a beautiful memory, represented by Frida holding a pair of bloody scissors.

DRAWING

In this drawing two hands are represented in the act of breaking up. The guy tries to keep the girl's hand, their relationship. However, the girl has started a new life and the boy has vague memories of it, but they do not allow her to turn the page and therefore to let him go permanently.
