

DONQUIXOTE FIGHTS THE WINDMILLS

Don Quixote was written by Miguel de Cervantes in 1615. It is the readest book worldwide and has been translated to many languages.

It tells the story of Don Quixote, a man who becomes crazy reading books about knights. Don Quixote tries to establish justice and peace worldwide riding his horse "Rocinante".

Sancho is his squire and rides a donkey "Rucio". Dulcinea is his love, a beautiful princess who only exists in Don Quixote's imagination.

Don Quixote and Sancho will live incredible adventures travelling around La Mancha

The next presentation is about a famous chapter.

It was a hot day. Don Quixote and Sancho were riding and talking about Knights adventures. The lanscape was flat and full of vineyars so they were in La Mancha.

Suddenly, they saw about fourty windmills in the distance located on a hill.

The windmills were enormous and moved their blades fast because there was a little wind. But Don Quixote had another crazy thought. A new adventure was going to start.

Don Quixote imagined the windmills were ugly giants with gigantic arms. However, Sancho Panza could only see some ordinary windmills.

The brave but crazy knight thought the giants challenged him so he decided to fight them. Those giants were dangerous he was a knight of justice and peace.

Don Quixote started to gallop towards the windmills imagining they were giants. Sancho Panza tried to stop him shouting all the time "be careful my sir you are wrong they are not giants, stop, stop please" but he didn't listen to his squire.

Don Quixote crashed into the first windmill falling into the ground.

Don Quixote defeated the giants in his imagination but in fact he was ill because he crashed into a blade windmill. . Sancho helped him to recover from that accident.

After fighting against the giants, Don Quixote and Sancho decided to have new adventures. They went to ride their horses toward another destination.
