

How to overcome stereotypes about people

Czech Republic Holic

Nathalie

- Czech people can be envious at times and so their behavior towards foreigners can be not as friendly at times. So maybe we should acknowledge it and change our behavior.

- Czechs are a lot envious. If you want to know the truth, you should come to Czechia.

Anna

Aneta

- Czech people are envious and greedy. They are quite lazy and they are not open to new things at all. We shouldn't judge people and get to know them before we make an opinion about them. We should travel more and get to know new cultures and most importantly communicate.

Veronika

- Czechs are unwilling and envious.
How to prevent it?
Listen, get to know each other, do not condemn

Markéta

- OVERCOMING STEREOTYPES: We must not judge people without getting to know them. Judging people based on rumors is not good. Many minorities face oppression, hate, and systematic racism every day. But we are all people, we all deserve respect. We should treat each other the same way we want them to treat us.

Adéla

- We must get to know people and we mustn't be afraid to communicate.
- I think we should travel more.

Martin

- I think it needs only some communication with people.

Tereza

- One of the best things to do is to follow antiracist activists and scholars on social media. We should establish meaningful, reciprocal relationships with people from other groups because this enables us to see them as complete human beings in their particular set of personal experiences and characteristics.
